A BRIEF NOTE ON THE HARVARD TRAVELLERS CLUB

SINCE ancient times it has been characteristic of our race to desire a knowledge of other lands and peoples beyond our own narrow sky line, to push out in search of undiscovered countries and unfamiliar things, to match skill and courage with unknown dangers, with wild beasts, and with hostile elements, until in our own time there remains scarcely a corner of the round earth unvisited or its inhabitants unknown. And just as the men of Athens gathered on Areopagus, eager to hear the tales of travellers returning from distant lands, so we in our day still meet together to hear or tell "some new thing," or to share the thrill of adventure or discovery with those who fare forth across the face of the earth seeking the inspiration of the unknown or the more lasting prize of an accurate knowledge of our globe and its inhabitants. Such "intelligent travel" forms the basis of modern geographical science, the intimate study of the earth's surface, its plants and its animals, and the relation of these to each other and to ourselves.

It was thus most fitting that thirty years ago, Harvard's eminent geographer, Professor William Morris Davis, in association with Copley Amory, Roland B. Dixon, James H. Kidder, and the late Archibald Cary Coolidge, invited Harvard men and others in this vicinity, who might be interested in "promoting intelligent travel and exploration," to meet together on November 15, 1902, in the assembly room of the Harvard Union at Cambridge, to consider the formation of a Harvard Travellers Club. Thirty men responded to the call.*

The above lines are excerpted from the History of the Harvard Travellers Club, published in 1933. The "Golden Age" of geographical exploration is now past and unlikely to be repeated—on this planet at least—but the spirit behind the founding of the Club remains intact. Today, our members still commit themselves to “intelligent travel” and continue to be curious about other scenes and locales and other ways of life. Certainly unchanged is our enjoyment in learning of one another’s travels.

In the present, as in the past, the Club’s membership—currently slightly less than 200 men and women—includes many travellers of note and ability. The breadth of experience in all corners of the earth, below and on the seas and in the air is very wide indeed.

Certainly no less impressive is the long list of those who have, as members or guests, related their journeys and researches at nearly 700 Club meetings spanning more than 90 years. The accomplishments of many can truly be described as legendary: The polar explorers Peary, Stefansson, Nordenskjöld, Greeley, Bartlett, MacMillan, Goodale and Vaughan . . . the mountaineers Mallory, Smythe, Shipton, Moore, Carter, Bates, Houston and Washburn . . . Hiram Bingham, the discoverer of Machu Picchu . . . the great central Asian explorers Sir Francis Younghusband, Sven Hedin and Roy Chapman Andrews . . . the Persian scholar Sir Percy Sykes . . . Bertram Thomas, the first European to cross the fabled Rub’ al-Khali . . . Sir Harry Johnston, African explorer and writer . . . President Theodore Roosevelt.

In its infancy the Club held its meetings at the Harvard Union or on special occasions at the Fogg Museum. A number of gatherings were held at members’ homes as well, and for a time the facilities of the old University Club and the Boston Athletic Association were used. Since its opening in 1913 the Harvard Club in Boston has been the scene of most of the Club’s programs. The pattern of eight Club meetings a year was established early.

The first Club Year Book appeared in 1904. Although rarely issued annually it has continued to the present day in essentially the same format. An inspection of past editions highlights the changing patterns of travel from the pre-automobile and pre-aviation age to the space age of today. Place names and descriptions change, of course, as do the modes and methods of travel, but happily the questing spirit remains unaltered to link the members of today with those who came before.

My most exciting travelling adventure was this past year: Before starting my job as an anesthetist at the Massachusetts General Hospital, I took a six-month leave of absence and purchased an around-the-world plane ticket. I went to Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, Indonesia, Thailand, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Beijing. I spent two weeks in Fiji, SCUBA diving. I then spent two months in Indonesia including a one-week cruise through the islands (Flores, Komodo, Lombok and Sumbawa). Komodo was a highlight because the entire island is a national park and I was able to witness first-hand the immensity, power and speed of the Komodo Dragon. I then spent two weeks in Sulawesi, north of Bali. It is renowned for the elaborate and unique funeral rituals in Rantepao, a city in the northern part of the island. Sulawesi was having its funeral rituals during the summer months when I was there. Basically, the family keeps the deceased body in the house, by the kitchen table, for up to two years after the death. It is thought that by including the deceased in "daily activities," it prevents decay of the body while funeral proceedings are being attended to. Funeral ceremonies are expensive and require a life savings. The ceremony lasts for up to a week and consists of feasting, killing and then eating water buffalo, and then building an elaborate tomb for the deceased. During medical school I spent two months in India. There

I worked in a tertiary care hospital in New Delhi. The All India Institute is one of the largest hospitals in India. Following the one-month clerkship in Delhi, I spent the next month travelling solo through India. This included Agra, Khajuraho, Udaipur, Jaipur, Madras, Ajanta, Aurangabad, Allora, Bombay, Calcutta and Bhubeneshwar. After India I spent two weeks in Nepal. My travel experiences also include extensive travel through Europe and one year living in Paris in 1987. There I took courses at the Sorbonne and cooking courses at the Cordon Bleu. One summer I worked at the Hospital Tenon in Paris.

In the summers of junior and senior high school (1950s), camped extensively in Utah, New Mexico and Arizona, and canoed in Northern Ontario and Quebec wilderness. As high school senior (1958) by plane to Lima and La Paz, by car to Lago di Titicaca and by steamer and train to Cuzco, and then to Machu Picchu. Between 1958 and 1962 travelled to Mexico and also biked in Europe and visited Quebec and New Brunswick. Following graduate school (1965-66) travelled one year around the world studying the potential for limiting world population growth, and reasons for certain nations developing while others did not. Visited Japan and Europe for tourism, including England, France, Germany, Sweden, Norway, Spain, Switzerland, Austria, Italy, Greece and Yugoslavia. And for study (as well as tourism) Kenya, Uganda, Nigeria, India, Thailand, Cambodia (Angkor pre-war), Singapore, Hong Kong and Korea. Of the total travel time, half was spent in India, making many contacts at village level. In 1967, I wrote several articles on population for private distribution and published another (in Population Studies) on "Son Survivorship Motivation and Family Size in India." In 1968, visited Turkey. Between 1969 and 1975 lived in Accra, Ghana, and established a business that could be of help to the local economy. The country declined in many ways, and the business was sold. This fascinating period included the burial of the Ashantehene. Since 1975 have travelled to France, including Paris (many times), Alsace (many times), Chamonix, Le Puy, the Riviera, Normandy, Brittany, Pays Basque and elsewhere. Have visited Russia, Switzerland, Italy, Spain and Monaco. Hiked twice in the Dolomites in Brenta Group and near Cortina on "iron trails" (cables and ladders). Hiked to floor of Grand Canyon three times and in Bryce, Zion, Canyonlands, Arches, Tetons, Yellowstone, etc. Also crawled in some of the "slot canyons" of the Escalante River of southern Utah. Visited and hiked many times in Hawaii, including Kauai, Oahu, Maui and Hawaii. Personally organized a three-person, three-week trek (with guide and porters) to 17,700 feet in Annapurna region of Nepal (October 1986) crossing through six ecological zones and many cultures, with incredible views of the Annapurna range from both sides. Trekged in Everest region to 17,700 feet, November 1991. In 1991 and 1992 have been walking in stages the long distance trail, GR5, in the French Alps from Lake Geneva toward Nice-one week of about 100 miles each summer. Visited Ecuadorian highlands, rainforest and Galapagos Islands, January 1994.

Grew up in Nice and Paris. Visited many parts of France, Gstaad, and the Spanish islands of Formentera and Minorca, as well as to Saint Sebastian. Spent three weeks in each of Morocco and Israel. Visited the United States on vacation in 1968, returning a year later to work in Manhattan. Between 1970 and 1975 frequently lived in Accra, Ghana, as well as New York, and visited neighboring Togo and Ivory Coast. Since 1975 have travelled to France, including Paris, Strasbourg and Barr in Alsace, Chamonix, Le Puy (to study bobbin lacemaking), Antibes, Honfleur, Quimper, Biarritz, Baune and elsewhere. Have visited Switzerland, Italy, Spain and Monaco. Hiked to bottom of Grand Canyon twice, once from each rim. Visited Hawaii many times, including Kauai, Oahu, Maui and Hawaii. Trekged with husband and friend to 17,700 feet in the Annapurna region of Nepal (October 1986). Now visit France twice a year.

I have always been interested in travel starting with family trips to Europe in 1933 and 1935 while I was small but alert. With the help of the Air Force and some business trips, by 1960 I had visited all the states in the U.S. and Mexico and all the provinces of Canada except the Yukon. My early involvement with Gorton's of Gloucester took me to some wonderfully remote fish plants in the Iles de Madeleine, Labrador and Newfoundland. In the early sixties Uncle Sam sent me to Finland for a visit giving me a base for a great short trip into Finnish and Norwegian Lapland. I returned there a few years later with all of my family on our way to three weeks in Russia and Poland. A sister working for Radio Free Europe provided a base for a great deal of European business and pleasure travel including bare-boat cruising in the Baltic and Ionian Seas. Beginning in the early 1970s I made a series of trips to the Arabian Peninsula and have spent considerable time in Saudi Arabia and the Emirates with shorter visits to Kuwait, Jordan, Egypt, Sudan, Lebanon and Israel. I visit Japan regularly on business and have traveled as well to India, China, Korea, Taiwan, Thailand, Malaysia (for orchids), Hong Kong and Singapore. Sailing and orchids have taken us pretty well around the Caribbean and Central America.

Have entered the 1,151-mile Iditarod sled dog race 13 times. Have gone to Greenland each year (except one) since 1981 to search for, excavate and salvage eight U.S. Air Force airplanes which were forced down without fuel in July, 1942. Found B-17 at 256 feet below surface of Greenland Ice Cap, but it was so damaged we didn't try to recover it. However, in 1990 we melted a shaft down to a P-38, took it apart, recovered it, and it is being reassembled in Kentucky. This plane will fly again. It was 266 feet below the surface. Residual from snow each year at this location is 5 to 6 feet. Visited Sweden, 1983 and 1984. Drove dog-team in the inaugural parades of Presidents Carter and Reagan and drove His Holiness John Paul II on his only dogsled ride. Spent two years preparing the Mount Vaughan Antarctic Expedition for austral summer 1993-94. Left October 26th with twenty sled dogs and thirteen people. DC-6 leased for trip crashed in Antarctica on first of seven scheduled flights. Will return to climb Mount Vaughan. Goal is to climb the 10,302-foot unclimbed mountain and summit on December 19, 1994, my 89th birthday.
